

HOTEL NAME:TOWNHOUSE HOTEL*HOTEL PROFILE:

our story begins in the 1660's;

When Table Bay's shoreline was just 700m away near the first Dutch mud fort on the Grand Parade, from where Nelson Mandela addressed our nation in 1991. Hippo wallowed in a swamp now called Church Square. Khoi herders pastured livestock in today's Mostert Street. A mountain stream, still flowing under the hotel, watered the Company Gardens and drove a flour mill on this spot. Opened in 1973 by François Petousis, the Hotel has since been substantially rebuilt. The murals of ceramic artist, Esias Bosch on our staircase, give an idea of the style of the original hotel. For Cape Town information go to "play".

The townhouse has been a cape town landmark for 40 years located on an historic spot where our city began some 350 years ago, to supply critical provisions and shelter to visitors to a port at the maritime crossroads of the world. At Townhouse, we're doing it still - in 21st Century, 4-star style, but with the same old-fashioned personal care that's made us one of the most popular city stays for business, leisure, local and foreign guests since we opened our doors.
